Mr Bob Ainsworth MP
House of Commons
Westminster
London

Dear Mr Ainsworth,

It is sad when those in high office such as Members of Parliament do not conduct themselves with the honesty, decency, fairness and integrity that we would all like and expect. It is significant that you have not had the decency to reply to the legitimate points I raised in my letter dated 11th October 2005. Is it any surprise that in light of this the observation is made that the public feel disengaged with British politics, disempowered and turn out in record low numbers to vote?

You know that it is you that elected to give public support to the Trust management and your friends in its employ. At the same time you have consistently criticised and undermined Dr Mattu and supported the position of your friends on the Trust Board towards him. I have responded by putting genuine questions to you to which I feel I have the right to a reply. I hope that you will have the courtesy to give me a reply to the points in my previous letter.

I shall allow seven days from the date of this letter for your response concerning your actions following which you will understand my need to take the matter elsewhere.

Yours sincerely,

Mr H PANNU
